

Editorial

An editorial is considered an integral part of a magazine. It is to a magazine what, in fact, steam is to a locomotive. One gives the get up to creative human ingenuity and the other chugs the engine on the rails. They are the power, so to speak, behind the body giving to it the necessary thrust and forward momentum. So the editorial is generally expected to bear some insight or carry some weighty message. Will this have one? Not quite, I am afraid. To the skeptical readers, this one may lack both; rather may not have them at all. Yet, I hope you will persist with it and go through its pages.

We all grow up with time, and age broadens our perspective. Of course, it has its downside too. It blurs our memories and causes it to fade. This School Annual is a repository of your memories precisely to aid you in such an eventuality. That is when it is hoped you will find the Annual a worthy companion as you journey down the proverbial memory lane and revisit your golden years. So let me urge you, Dear Students: preserve the Annual for what it is worth. I might add: make it happen every year as well.

For the Annual holds within its pages perhaps, the best part of your lives. It has within it your memories as well as the long history of Gyanodaya, in the making of which you all have played your parts with your teachers, led ably and firmly and against many odds by its Founder Principal Ms. Indira Yakthumba. And under whose leadership, you all know better, the School has made remarkable progress in the service of the nation and grown from strength to strength over the years to be what it is and stand where it is today.

So cherish and keep its memories alive; hold high its ethos and values; grow in knowledge and live in truth.
